The Four Friendly Animals

Once upon a time, a dove, a hare, a monkey and an elephant were living together for many years in a beautiful forest in India. "Since we all live, we should respect the oldest of us and the younger ones must listen to him so we can all serve him whatever he wishes," they said among themselves, and they asked each other who was the oldest. A big tree was growing in that place. The elephant pointed to that tree and said, "When I was an elephant-calf, I used to rub myself against that tree. Then we were both the same size. Monkey said, "When I was little there were no branches in which to jump and play. I was the same size as the tree and the shade of the tree couldn't hide me." The hare said, "When I was little, the tree's roots were just beginning to grow, so I used to dig down to the roots so that I could eat them." The dove said, "I was picking the fruit of a tree and it fell near this place. So another tree began to grow near this one. Therefore, the oldest one was the dove, the next oldest the hare, the monkey, and the youngest the elephant. As they agreed to respect the eldest, the elephant carried the monkey on his back. The monkey carried the hare, who carried on his back the dove. Thus the dove was able to reach the fruits of the tree and took them off and gave them to his brothers. In this manner these four animals respected and protected one another, and they lived happily ever after.

Japan's most famous dog In front of the enormous Shibuya train station in Tokyo, there is a life-size bronze statue of a dog. Even though the statue is very small when compared to the huge neon signs flashing, it isn't difficult to find. It has been used as a meeting point since 1934 and today you will find hundreds of people waiting there for their friends to arrive just look for the crowds. Hachiko, an Akita dog, was born in 1923 and brought to Tokyo in 1924. His owner, Professor Eisaburo Uyeno and he were inseparable friends right from the start. Each day Hachiko would accompany his owner, a professor at the Imperial University, to Shibuya train station when he left for work. When he came back, the professor would always find the dog patiently waiting for him. Sadly, the professor died suddenly at work in 1925 before he could return home. Although Hachiko was still a young dog, the bond between him and his owner was very strong and he continued to wait at the station every day. Sometimes, he would stay there for days at a time, though some believe that he kept returning because of the food he was given by street vendors. He became a familiar sight to commuters over time. In 1934, a statue of him was put outside the station. In 1935, Hachiko died at the place he last saw his friend alive.

39. Hachiko used to wait for the owner every day at the station. 1. True 2. False

40. Nobody gave Hachiko any food. 1. True 2. False
